CONTENTS.

CHAP. I.

PAGE

Opening of the Session of Parliament. Prince Regent's Speech. Debates on the Address. Supplies for the Year. Ways and Means for Great Britain and Ireland. Vote of Credit, - - - - 3

CHAP. II.

Bank of England. Renewal of Restrictions on Cash-payments. Proceedings as to the Profits of the Bank on its Transactions with Government. Bill for putting an end to the exclusive Privilege of the South-Sea Company. Bill to make Freehold Estates liable for simple Contract Debts. Bill to Amend the Laws respecting Insolvent Debtors. Abolition of Gaol Fees. Bill for Abolition of the Pillory. Act for extending Jury Trial in Civil Causes to Scotland, - - - 23

CHAP III.

Proceedings in Parliament on the Bill for Restricting the Importation of Corn, - 34

CHAP. IV.

Observations on the Policy of the Corn-Bill, - - - - - 57

CHAP. V.

Domestic Affairs. Imposture of Joanna Southcote. Fanaticism of her Disciples. Her Death and Interment. Extension of the Order of the Bath. Classes into which it is divided. Remarks on the Measure, and its Tendency. Trial of Sir John Murray. Riots on Account of the Corn Bill. Members of the House of Commons attacked and insulted. Houses attacked and Property destroyed. Continuation of the Riots on the 7th. Persons Shot in Burlington Street. Petition of the Electors of Westminster against the Corn Bill. Conduct of Sir Francis Burdett in moving it, and Debate which ensued, in the House of Commons. Acquittal of the Soldiers indicted for Murder in defence of Mr Robinson's House. Liberal Feelings of the Populace towards them. Anecdote of a Private Soldier of the Guards, 72

PAGE

CHAP. VI.

Internal State of France. Defects of the Administration. Count de Blacas. State of Parties. Royalists, comprehending the Nobles, and Clergy, and Vendeans. Tumult at the Funeral of Mademoiselle du Raucour. Sepulchral Honours paid to Louis XVI. and his Queen. Jealous Fears of the Possessors of National Domains. Republicans. Buonapartists. Discontents of the Army. Constitutionalists. Purchasers of National Domains. Resemblance between the State of France and of England after the Restoration, - - - 87

CHAP. VII.

Report on the State of France. The Finances. The War Establishment. The Navy. Moral State of the Country. Debate on the Liberty of the Press. Faure's Motion for a previous Censorship. Opposed by Marshal Macdonald. Adopted in a modified State. Reflections on these Restrictions. Petition of Ferru, and other Booksellers, to the Chamber of Deputies. Characters of some of the Censors. Conduct of Incendiary Authors and Publishers to evade the Law. Affairs of the Maire of Darnae, and the ancient Seigneur. Marshal Macdonald's Plan for granting Indemnities to the Emigrants, and paying the Pensions of the veteran Soldiers, 107

CHAP. VIII.

Leaders of the Jacobins. Carnot—His History—His Memorial against the Bourbons. Fouché—His Share in the Massacres of the Revolution—His Conduct on the King's Restoration. Intrigues and Misrepresentations of the Disaffected under these Leaders. Warlike Preparations in France. National Dislike to the English. Duke of Wellington's Residence in Paris. Policy of Talleyrand at the Congress. He endeavours to direct the Resentment of the Allies against Bernadotte—Against Murat. Arrest of Lord Oxford, and Seisure of his Papers. Affair of General Excelmans. His Petition to the Chamber of Deputies—That of General Grissoles. Excelmans is tried by a Court Martial, and acquitted. Insubordination of the Army. Life of Napoleon at Elba. His Conversations with his Visitors. His Character begins to be more favourably considered. Arts of his Emissaries to fix the public Mind of France upon him. His Correspondence with Murat—With France. Females engaged in the Plot. Organization of the Conspiracy. Imperfect State of the Parisian Police. Correspondence with Elba maintained through the Royal Post-Office. Every thing is prepared for the bursting forth of the Conspiracy, 125

CHAP. IX.

Buonaparte embarks at Elba—And lands in France—And marches to Gap. Suspicions of Treachery in the War Department. Labedoyere joins Buonaparte with his Regiment. Revolt of the Troops at Grenoble. Measures of the Royal Party. Soult is displaced from the Ministry. The Treason of Lefebvre Desnouettes and Lallemand is discovered, and prevented. Defection of the Troops under Macdonald. Decrees of Lyons. Buonaparte's progress to Auxerre. His Interview with the Vicar-General. Ney is appointed to command against Buonaparte. He deserts and joins him. The King visits the Chamber of Deputies. Their Enthusiasm in the Royal Cause. A Camp formed at Melun—But its Fidelity is doubted. The King leaves Paris—Is expelled from Lisle—And compelled to retreat to Ghent. Disasters of his Followers. Defection of the Army at Melun. State of Affairs at Paris. Buonaparte enters the Capital and completes the Revolution. Fickleness of the People and their Leaders, - - - 142

CHAP. X.

PAGE

The Cities and Provinces of France declare for Buonaparte. Failure of the Duke of Bourbon's Enterprize in La Vendee. Duchess of Angouleme driven from Bourdeaux. Duke of Angouleme compelled to surrender in the South. Buonaparte proposes Peace to the Allies. Declaration of the Congress at Vienna. Treaty of Alliance between Austria, Prussia, Russia, and Great Britain. Message of the Prince Regent to the House of Commons, and Debate which followed thereupon. Motion respecting Buonaparte's Escape from Elba—And Debate which ensued. Mr Whitbread's Motion against War with France, and the Debate. Debate on the Treaty of Alliance. Mr Whitbread's Amendment. - - 159

CHAP. XI.

Situation of Murat. Debate concerning him in the House of Commons. Disaffection in the Milanese Territory. Riots in the Theatre. Murat puts his Army in motion—His dubious Policy—He occupies Rome, and commences offensive Operations against the Austrians—His Proclamation from Rimini—He attacks the Lower Po, and is defeated at Occhiebello—Commences his Retreat—Solicits an Armistice, and is refused. Battle of Tolentino. Murat's Defeat and disastrous Retreat—He is intercepted at Saint Germano by General Nugent—His Rear-guard destroyed. Flies alone to Naples—And from thence to France. General Insurrection in Naples and Calabria. The Queen surrenders to the British. The Austrians occupy Naples. Surrender of the Neapolitan Army. Restoration of King Ferdinand. Murat in danger of being killed by the Royalists—Flies to Corsica—Refuses a Retreat offered to him in Austria—His Proclamation to the Neapolitans—Lands near Pizzo—But is defeated and made Prisoner—And tried and executed by a Neapolitan Court-Martial, - - - - - - 185

CHAP. XII.

Buonaparte attempts to conciliate Foreign Powers. His Decrees for educating Youth, and abolishing the Slave Trade. A Plot to carry off the Empress and her Child is detected at Vienna. Versatility of the French Men of Letters. Disputes between Buonaparte and his Ministers. Proclamation of Louis XVIII. Activity of the Royalists of Paris. Buonaparte pays Court to the Federates. Their Procession and Review. Preparations for War. Commissioners sent into the Departments. Disinclination to the War, and Disaffection, prevail generally. Fouché's Report on these Particulars. Buonaparte leaves the Tuilleries, and goes to the Palace of Elysée-Bourbon. He Publishes the Additional Act to the Constitutions of the Empire. Objected to as not originating with the Nation—And as being only an Appendix to the Imperial Code of Constitutions. It is generally disliked—But subjected to the Votes of the French People. Illusory Nature of the Sanction thus obtained. Buonaparte's Brothers arrive at Paris. Ceremony of the Champ de Mai. Acceptance of the Constitution. Delivery of the Eagles to the Troops. Meeting of the Legislative Chambers. Character of the Chamber of Peers—Of Representatives. The Chamber of Representatives disputes with Napoleon on Points of Form. Speech of Buonaparte to the Chambers. Address of the Peers. Address of the Representatives. Buonaparte's Reply to that Address, - 200

CHAP. XIII.

Insurrection of La Vendee. Motion of Seguevel. Death of La Roche-Jaquelein, and Capitulation of the Royalists. Preparations of the Allies. The Position of their Armies. Forces of Wellington—Of Blucher. Preparations of Buonaparte. His Plan of Attack. He fortifies the Frontier on the Austrian Line. Calls his best

Generals around him. Concentrates his Army at Avesnes. His Address to them. Commences the Campaign. Takes Charleroi, and compels Ziethen to retire. Battle of Ligny under Fleurus. Dreadful Conflict. Prussians finally defeated. Imminent danger of Blucher. He effects his retreat unmolested. Ney attacks the Advanced-Guard of Wellington at Quatre Bras. The British Army comes up. Severe Action. The French take the Wood—But are dislodged by the Guards—And finally compelled to retire. Loss on either Side. The Duke of Wellington retreats. Is pursued by the French. Skirmish at Genappes. The British arrive on the Field of Waterloo, and bivouac for the Night, - - PAGE 219

CHAP. XIV.

Disposition of the British Army. The French come on the Ground. Their Dispositions. The Action commences. Attack on Hougoumont—And on the British Right. The Mode of receiving it. It is finally unsuccessful. Attack on the British Centre and Left. Death of Picton. Cavalry Engagement. Bulow's Corps begins to enter into Action. Reiterated Attacks of the French. Personal Conduct of the Duke of Wellington: Great Loss of the British Troops. Attack by the Imperial Guards. It is totally defeated. The British Attack in Line. The Prussians come up in Force. The French are totally routed. Flight of Buonaparte. Movements of the Prussians. Affair at Wavre. Pursuit of the French by Blucher. Loss of the Armies engaged, - - - - - - - 234

CHAP. XV.

The Army. Grant to the Duke of Wellington. Motion respecting Corporal Punishments in the Army. Thanks to the Duke of Wellington and the Army for the Victory of Waterloo. National Monument in Honour of that Victory. Monuments to Generals Ponsonby and Picton. Honours and Privileges conferred on the Troops. Waterloo Subscription. Vote of Thanks to the Duke of York, - 249

CHAP. XVI.

Buonaparte's Return to Paris. His Motives for this Measure. Rise of the Funds at Paris. Meeting of the Chamber of Deputies. Motion of La Fayette. They command the Attendance of the Ministers. Debates in the Secret Committee. The Chamber intimate their Desire that Buonaparte should abdicate. Reflections on their Right to require this Sacrifice. Conduct of Napoleon, and his indecision. He holds a Council. Ferment in the Chamber of Deputies. The Emperor's Abdication is presented to them. Their Address on the Occasion. Ney's Speech in the House of Peers. Furious Debate on acknowledging Napoleon II. Labedoyere's violent Harangue. Debate on the same Subject in the other Chamber. Napoleon II. is indirectly acknowledged. Buonaparte's farewell Proclamation to the Army. He is removed to Malmaison. His situation there. Placed under the Superintendance of General Beker, and removed to Rochefort. Proclamation of Louis XVIII. Reflections on the Principle of Legitimacy, as applied to Monarchical Right, - - - - - - - - - - 256

CHAP. XVII.

Military Movements. Flight of the French to their own Frontiers. Retreat of Grouchy's Division. Battle at Namur. Grouchy escapes to Laon. Advance of the Allies. Capture of Avesnes by the Prussians—Their Severity to the French. Moderation of the British—Who take Cambray and Peronne. French Commissioners come to treat of Peace. Armistice refused. Conference at Haguenau. Fouché secretly embraces the Interest of the Bourbons. Advance of the Allied

PAGE

Armies. Wrede crosses the Rhine at Manheim, and takes Chalons. The Prince Royal of Wirtemberg enters France from Philipsberg—Defeats General Rapp, and invests Strasbourg. The Arch-Duke Ferdinand defeats Lecourbe, and advances on Langres. General Frimont drives the French from the Valley of the Arve. Bubna takes the Tete-de-Pont at Arly. The Grand Army, under the Sovereigns, enters France without opposition. Situation of the French Provisional Government—They have no Influence either with the Army or the People—Yet retain their Animosity to the Bourbons. Malleville's Address in Favour of the Bourbons. Reflections on the Course he recommended. Gareau denounces Malleville. Fortifications of Paris. The Army's Declaration against the Bourbons. Propositions of Bory St Vincent in the Chamber of Representatives. The Allied Armies come before Paris. Declaration of the French Army. Measures of Fouché and the moderate Party. Operations of the Armies. Skirmish at Versailles. Paris Surrenders. The Conditions of Capitulation, - - - - - 276

CHAP. XVIII.

Disturbances in the Capital. The Army evacuates Paris. Entrance of the Allied Troops. Conduct of the Provisional Government. Dissolution of the Chambers. Entrance of the King. Difficulties of his Situation. He appoints a Ministry. Fouché named Minister of Police. He recommends Lenity. Ordinances of the 24th of July. They are not strictly executed. Disturbances in Paris and the Provinces. Submission of various Corps of the Army. Catastrophe of General Ramel. Submission and Murder of Marshal Brune. Macdonald endeavours to re-organize the Army of the Loire. Their disorderly State. They are disbanded. Disturbances in the South—And at Nismes. General de la Garde attacked and wounded. New Commotions in Paris. Trials and Executions of Labedoyere and the Two Fauchers. The King assembles the Chamber of Representatives, - - 297

CHAP. XIX.

The Royalists attack the Ministry,—and prevail. The Chamber of Deputies is assembled—Its Character. Talleyrand and Fouché resign—Their alleged Reasons. A new Ministry is appointed. Arrest of Ney. The Court-Martial declares itself incompetent to try him. He is tried by the Chamber of Peers, and found Guilty of High Treason. Attempts to save him. His Execution. Severities inflicted on France by the Allied Armies. Dispersion of the National Museum. Treaty of Peace—Its Conditions. Speech of the King on opening the Sittings of the Chamber of Deputies, - - - - - - 316

CHAP. XX.

Buonaparte's arrival at Rochefort. His Indecision. He Surrenders to the British, and goes on board the Bellerophon. Arrival at Torbay. Arguments respecting the Mode of treating him. It is resolved to send him to St Helena. He protests against the Measure, and threatens Suicide, but is safely embarked and landed on the Island. Disturbances among the North Country Seamen. East Indies. Nepaul War. Unsuccessful attempt to storm Kalunga, and Death of General Gillespie. Kalunga evacuated. Operations of General Ochterlony. Spirited Resistance of Amur Sing. His Advice to the Rajah of Nepaul. Taking of Almerah. Defeat of Amur Sing, and his Surrender of the disputed Provinces. Disagreements with the Chinese. Conquest of Candy. Reflections, - - - 333

CHAP. XXI.

America. Unsuccessful Attack on New-Orleans. Capture of Fort Mobile. Capture of the President Frigate. Ratification of the Treaty of Peace. Discussion in Parliament on the Address of Thanks to the Prince Regent for this Treaty. Commercial Treaty entered into. Reflections, - - - - 353

PAGE

CHAP. XXII.

West Indies. Martinico occupied by the British Forces. Guadaloupe reduced by Sir James Leith. Continued Hostilities in South America. Lamentable State of Affairs in Spain. Insurrection of Porlier—He is arrested and executed. Constitution of the Netherlands. Remonstrance of the Belgian Clergy. Marriage of the Prince of Orange. Poland united with Russia. Germany. Disputes betwixt the King and States of Wirtemburgh. Territorial Acquisitions of Prussia. Her new Constitution. German Confederation and Diet, - - - 361

CHRONICLE, containing brief Accounts of the various Public Occurrences of the Year, - - - - - - - i—lxxxii
APPENDIX I.—Gazettes, - - - - lxxxiii
——— II.—State Papers, British, - - - clxv
——— Ditto, Foreign, - - - cl
Public Acts of the Year, - - - - - ccxviii
PUBLIC ACCOUNTS of Great Britain and Ireland, - - ccxxxi
List of Patents, - - - - - ccxlvii

POETRY.

The Vision of Belshazzar, an Ode, - - - ccli
The Voice of the People, from the German of Schiller, - - cclv
Dirge of a Highland Chief, executed after the Rebellion, - - cclvi
The Search after Happiness, or the Quest of Sultaun Solimaun, - cclviii

---

The London General Bill of Mortality, - - - cclxvii
Lists of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, - - - cclxviii
List of Promotions, - - - - cclxxxiv
New Publications, - - - - *i
Index, - - - - *xli